Our cultural highlights

Art

Charles I: King and Collector

An impossible dream made real: Charles I's collection reunited for the first time since his execution. Titian, Bellini, Leonardo, Van Dyck – a treasury of masterpieces winging in from all over the world. Royal Academy, London; Saturday to 15 April.

Theatre

Book now: Macbeth

Tickets for additional dates for Rufus Norris's sold-out production go on sale on Friday (8.30am). Anne-Marie Duff and Rory Kinnear star. The design is by Rae (War Horse) Smith. Olivier, London; previews from Friday; new tickets are for 12 May onwards.

Art

Burns Unbroke

Not that he was broken to begin with: Robert Burns's literary and political legacy explored by contemporary artists including the Chapman Brothers, Douglas Gordon and David Mach. Summerhall, Edinburgh; Thursday to 10 March.

Pop

Hot Snakes

Blow the winter cobwebs away with rarely-seen garage rock recidivists Hot Snakes, who have a new album, Jericho Sirens, dropping imminently. Manchester (Thur), Glasgow (Fri), Newcastle (Sat), and touring until 3 Feb.

Classical

Total Immersion: Bernstein 100

The centenary of the charismatic American composer, conductor and activist Leonard Bernstein is celebrated in a day of films, talks, concerts. BBC Symphony Orchestra and Singers, Barbican, London, Saturday from 11am.
